

Ellijay Wildlife Rehabilitation Sanctuary

435 Cougar Lane, Ellijay, Georgia 30540 | (706) 276-2980 - Fax (706) 276-2979

Public Service Announcement

:60

The Eastern Panther was recently declared extinct in Georgia but you could be lucky enough to see one if you act now..... The Eastern Panther is one of the most endangered large cats in North America, and five of them live at the Ellijay Wildlife Sanctuary in North Georgia. The sanctuary hopes to help repopulate this rare species in the wild before they become completely extinct. For over twenty years, the sanctuary has cared not only for the Eastern Panther, but for all species of injured or orphaned wildlife from around the southeast ranging from baby squirrels and deer to black bears and birds of prey. Now the Ellijay Wildlife Sanctuary is in crisis due to loss of funding and will not be able to care for these rare and beautiful animals much longer unless we help. If preserving Georgia's wildlife is important to you, please call, 706-276-2980, that's 706-276-2980. Or, go to 2wild2tame.com, that's 2wild2tame.com using the number 2. The Ellijay Wildlife Sanctuary must have immediate funds to continue. Please help!

:30

The Ellijay Wildlife Sanctuary needs your help! The Sanctuary has cared for Georgia's injured wildlife for twenty years but has lost its funding and may have to close. It also houses five of the few remaining endangered Eastern Panthers, and several injured bears. If you wish to help Georgia's wildlife, please call 706-276-2980, 706-276-2980. Or visit 2wild2tame.com, using the number 2. The Ellijay Wildlife Sanctuary needs your help now.